QuietHire.com, Inc. is the future of confidential hiring, today.

This revolutionary website is unlike every other internet job board in existence. Our candidates remain completely anonymous! This anonymity allows never-before-seen candidates an opportunity to be easily discovered by corporations all over the world.

Why Never-Before-Seen?

Actively employed people do not currently have a way to show their credentials anonymously to companies or corporations who may have a career opportunity for them. Nearly 40% of all working people never post their resume for fear of reprisal, and yet might be interested in and could benefit from new career opportunities. Their only current choice is to either post their resume, wait for a recruiter to approach them or research job sites. Posting a resume or other personally identifiable information is not an option.

How Does QuietHire.com Solve This?

Our unique process provides these never-before-seen candidates total anonymity via a confidential candidate profile; never revealing their name, current employer, or any other personally identifiable information. This descriptive anonymous profile, removes fear, yet showcases their career history, skills and achievements.

Employers worldwide will be able to access these profiles for one low annual fee.
What Happens Next?

Candidates whose profiles match an employer's job criteria will be contacted through our confidential email messaging system. This email will provide company information and job position detail. Candidates have the luxury of choosing which company position they wish to pursue. If a candidate wishes not to pursue a company's interest, they may simply ignore the request. By responding to an employer, the interview process begins.
