

Who Should Use QuietHire.com?

Every working man, woman and employable person should create an updatable, confidential profile on QuietHire.com that can last throughout their working career.

Candidates:

- Every employee who fears repercussion to their current job security if they posted their resume on line
- People who have limited time to research new job opportunities
- Currently employed people who are interested in hearing about new opportunities
- People who don't trust giving a recruiter their resume, not knowing where it may go in the future
- People who need to remain anonymous in their job searches
- People who are re-entering the job market
- Those who want to find how marketable they are
- People who believe they are ready for career advancement
- People who are interested in being discovered by another company in their area of expertise
- People who are open to changing their geographical location

Companies

- Companies that want a huge new database of never-before-seen candidates
- Companies that have multiple openings and need to conduct unlimited searches for one low annual fee.
- Companies that can not find good results with traditional on-line job boards
- Companies that can't locate the exact employee they seek using traditional search techniques
- Companies that are tired of spending exorbitant fees on recruiters and advertising
- Companies that want to conduct a confidential search