

How is QuietHire Different from Other On-Line Employment Websites?

- QuietHire.com never asks for personally identifying information from our posting candidates.
- QuietHire.com never request the uploading of a resume.
- QuietHire.com protects candidate identity. A candidate can choose to divulge information after replying to the company's electronic contact.
- Candidates and client companies are in complete control of the hiring processes, cutting out the expense associated with recruiters and advertising.
- Candidates choose which companies to pursue after receiving notice of interest and viewing company information and job position details.
- Candidates do not have to spend countless hours searching online job boards for open positions.
- Candidates maintain a confidential profile 24/7, 365 days a year with ability to update or delete throughout their career
- Employers pay a one time low annual fee for unlimited access to the confidential candidate profiles 24/7 365 days a year.
- Employers never have to post a job
- Employers get instant results by putting keywords into their job search criteria and specific job searches can be saved for future use.
- Employers only have to enter their company profile information once.